In Flanders' Fields

In Flanders' fields, the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.
We are the dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders' fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch. Be yours to lift it high!
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies blow
In Flanders' fields.

Lt. COL. JOHN McCRAE

France 1917.

Glen-Coa Gleanings

We are glad to report that Mrs. James is now at her daughter, Mrs. H. Fuder's home, after spending about nine weeks in hospital at Hardisty.

Another family has left our district. We hope this is not becoming an epidemic. Mr. and Mrs. L. Peterson and children left on Saturday last to take residence on a farm not too far from Edmonton. They left rather unexpectedly so that the neighbors were unable to plan a farewell on them. However, the good wishes of all follow them in their new venture. We will miss them very much as they were active participants in all our community activities.

Sharon W.M.F. will meet at the H. Ruste home on November 14. Assistant hostesses are Mrs. Rasmak and Mrs. B. Gullbra.

A number of Sharon folk attended the British and Foreign films under the direction of the Bess House at the Irma church last Friday. It is always an inspiration to see these films.

Irma Landmark Being Demolished

An old landmark in Irma is being demolished this week as Mr. Lingley from Jarro is busy taking down the old building on Main street which is commonly known as Stone's Bakery. Old-timers tell us this is the oldest building in Irma. So far, we have not been able to find out who built it or for what purpose. It was the first restaurant in Irma but if there were other uses for the building before that we do not know. Mrs. M. Tripp, who is at Hanna this month, could probably tell us.

Northern Nuggets

On Tuesday evening this community was invaded by bright-eyed, rosy cheek maidens with their gay challenge to "shell out." This is indeed a worthy project and something in which we can all have a part.

Last week Mr. Jack Fletcher was a welcome guest at the home of his old friends, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Ramsey.

We are sorry to hear that Mrs. Louie Larson is a patient in the Viking hospital.
Mrs. Johnny Randle and wee daughters returned to their home in Edmonton last Sunday.
Misses Lois Patterson and Cleo Windrum spent last weekend at the home of Mrs. Arlie Patterson.

EASTERLY ECHOES

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Savard were city visitors last week. Mumps and flu is still being reported in the district.

Mrs. J. Oraschki visited with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Wyand recently.

Bill Lawson's new house is nearing completion. We understand they plan to move in, in time for Christmas.

Related congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. H. Benoit on the arrival of their infant sons recently.

Harold Dootson and Norman Nissen have found a way that overcomes the "painful" business of writing that weekly letter home. They made a tape recording in letter form, plus some musical numbers. Harold and Mr. Ole Nissen have tape recordings, so their parents enjoyed hearing the boys' voices.

The Battle River W.I. plan on serving lunch at Mr. Bill Veer's auction sale, November 14.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Burton of Vancouver are visiting with their family.

Lillian Mikkelsen Farewelled

A good number of friends and well-wishers gathered at the Alliance Tabernacle on Saturday evening for a farewell meeting with Miss Lillian Mikkelsen, missionary on furlough from the Netherlands West Indies.

At 6 p.m. a fellowship supper was enjoyed and the guest of honor received many parting gifts. Later a musical program was enjoyed and Lillian showed slides and gave an inspiring talk on the work at Curaco and other island stations.

Lillian expects to leave Irma shortly. The prayers and good wishes of her many friends will go with her.

—Dad, Jim, Elsie and family.

Feeding Cattle

The winter feeding period is very important in deciding how much profit is going to come out of the herd. The breeding herd is very important because the quality of next year's calf crop is largely dependent on the care the cows get this winter. Good quality hay should be the basis of winter feeding. If the hay is not top quality it should be supplemented with a bit of grain, from 2 to 4 pounds per animal per day, depending on the hay quality. Unless there is a good percentage of alfalfa in the hay a vitamin A supplement should also be fed. This can be obtained in pelleted forms which is easy to feed. For calves being grown out over winter, good hay is also important but a good idea to give the calves 2 to 3 pounds of grain per head per day no matter how good the hay is. Oats is probably the best grain for calves. All cattle should have access to plenty of clean water at all times. If the chills can be taken off the water it is even better. A little investment in feed and care now can yield good profit later.

Trees for 1958 Planting

The supply of trees for next spring is going down fast. Any one with land ready for trees who hasn't got an application in yet should do so right away. There are the usual Spruce, Lodgepole Pine, Scotch Pine, Poplar, Willow, Maple, Elm, Ash, Caragana and Honeysuckle.

Fowl Cholera

This disease of poultry is prevalent again this year. This can cause heavy losses in the poultry flock and can also affect hogs, so poultry and pigs should be kept well separated. Proper sanitation is the best preventative to keep the poultry house dry and free from drafts. Make sure the birds have plenty of clean water at all times. Cut out and destroy all sick birds in the flock. If you have sick birds, send a specimen to the Provincial Veterinary Laboratory for accurate diagnosis.

Weekly Inspirational Corner

(Sponsored by an Irma Times reader)

Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all ye lands.
Serve the Lord with gladness: come before His presence with singing.

Know ye that the Lord He is God: it is He that hath made us, and not we ourselves; we are His people, and the sheep of His pasture.

Enter into His gates with thanksgiving, and into His courts with praise: be thankful unto Him and bless His name.

For the Lord is good; His mercy is everlasting; and His truth endureth to all generations.
—Psalm 100.

Who was known as Tea King Of America?

The title was earned by Peter Charles Larkin, a native of Montreal, who originated the idea of selling tea in sealed lead-foil packets. He built up the Salada Tea Company and became its president. In 1922 he became a member of the privy council and was appointed Canadian High Commissioner in London, where he died in office.

Where was the first agricultural fair in North America held?

North America's first agricultural fair was held at Windsor, N.S. in 1765. Saint John, N.B. had a provincial industrial exhibition in 1891. Ontario and Quebec encouraged fairs and exhibitions and made them a vital force in the life of each province. The Niagara Agricultural Society, founded about 1792, apparently held the first fair in Upper Canada. By 1840 there were fairs at London, York, Guelph, Ottawa, Fort Hope, Cobourg, Brantford, Hamilton and several other places.

Who was known as the greatest matchmaker in the world?

The most successful matchmaker of his generation was Ezra Butler Eddy, who began making matches by hand at Hull, Que., in 1854. He also built and operated a sulphite mill. Despite several disastrous fires, the business prospered and in 1886 it was reorganized as the E. B. Eddy Company, with Eddy as president. He was the first man in Quebec to use trucks for commercial purposes and he installed the first electric plant in eastern Canada. He served as mayor of Hull on six occasions and was instrumental in giving that city its waterworks and sewage system. He also served in the Quebec legislative assembly.

News Report

from Edmonton

By Ken Mason

EDMONTON — Hon. Alfred J. Hooke takes the prize for the most unusual hobby among members of the Alberta cabinet.

Mr. Hooke, minister of municipal affairs and provincial secretary, is an entertainer. In fact, he's probably the only minister of the crown in the British Commonwealth who spends as much time on the variety stage as he does on the political platform.

He gives witty recitations in Lancashire dialect, plays the accordion, harmonica and fiddle, sings, and leads his own dance orchestra. The reason for this unusual hobby, he explains, is simply that he enjoys it.

Mr. Hooke leads a troupe of about 20 performers—most of them provincial civil servants—who appear on the average once a month in towns and villages throughout the northern part of Alberta. They generally appear under the auspices of some worthwhile organization, and any proceeds which go to the troupe are used for special projects in aid of underprivileged children.

Naturally, he hears plenty of complaints that the entertainment sideline is used for political advantage. This he denies emphatically. The group is known as Alf Hooke and the Westerners, and the minister stipulates that there be no mention of the cabinet, or of the prefix "honorable" before his name.

Of course, there have been slips. Local masters of ceremonies sometimes refer to him inadvertently as "Hon. Mr. Hooke. Once at Barrhead the sponsoring committee plastered posters all over town heralding the upcoming visit of "Hon. A. J. Hooke and his Cabinet Orchestra."

Colleagues in the cabinet sometimes tell him it is undignified for a minister to clown on the stage, but that's the least of Mr. Hooke's worries. For one act, he dresses in an outlandish false beard, battered hat and tattered clothing to sing a hill-billy number.

His usual stage costume is a multi-colored silk cowboy shirt, 10-gallon hat, frontier pants and high-heeled boots.

The whole thing started while Mr. Hooke was minister of economic affairs. He gathered a few musicians together for a dance to help raise funds for a regional library. It went over so well that more dances were demanded. Then entertainers were added, and it became a variety show. Today the Westerners have more requests than they can possibly fill.

Mr. Hooke has always been interested in entertaining, and finds it relatively easy to play almost any musical instrument, although he's never taken a lesson.

The sharp wit he uses on the stage also serves him well as a politician, and he can be counted upon to enliven dull debates in the Legislature. He also goes over well in his home riding of Rocky Mountain House, which he has represented since Social Credit came to power in 1935.

Born at Whitecourt, England, Mr. Hooke came to Canada with his family at the age of eight, and lived in the Halkirk area, near Stettler, where his father was in the mining business and later went into farming.

He began earning his own living at the age of 13 when he went to work as a farmhand at $1 a day. At the age of 17 he went back to school and took grades 8 through 12 in three years.

In 1925, he attended normal school at Calgary, obtained his teaching certificate, and went back to farming to raise enough money for the summer session at the University of Alberta. He taught school at Halkirk, Fries and Trochu, and was principal at Rocky Mountain House when he first got to the Legislature.

Mr. Hooke was appointed to the municipal affairs portfolio in the cabinet shakeup of 1955 after C. E. Gerhart, then provincial secretary, was defeated in the provincial election, and Hon. E. W. Hinman moved up from municipal affairs to take his place.

At the time, observers saw the choice of Mr. Hooke as a move by Premier Manning to improve relations between the province and the municipalities. Certainly a lot of ill feeling had developed, and Mr. Hooke was the man with the personality to mend the fences.

Since then it is generally agreed that relations are happier, although Mr. Hooke feels his job is far from finished.

EDMONTON — Hon. Dr. J. Donovan Ross, Alberta's minister of health, is a politician more or less by accident.

Five years ago he had no idea of entering public life, and he knew no more of medicine than the average citizen about the philosophies of the Social Credit party which forms Alberta's government.

In fact, he was all set to wind up his thriving medical practice in Edmonton and move to Jasper (because he likes the mountains) when a friend telephoned one night in February of 1952 and suggested he run for the Legislature.

"I was sort of floored," he recalls. "I talked it over with my wife, my parents and my friends. Surprisingly, many of them thought it was a good idea. Then I spoke to Premier Manning. In August of 1952 I was elected."

That's the story of the political career of Joseph Donovan Ross, family doctor. In five years of public life he has moved from one of the most important portfolios of the provincial cabinet, heading a department which spends millions of dollars every year to administer a mammoth public health program.

It came as no major surprise when Premier Manning called on Dr. Ross to take over the retirement of Hon. Dr. W. W. Cross, who headed the health department for 22 years. The only unexpected thing was timing. Even Dr. Ross says he expected Dr. Cross to remain in office until the next election.

The new minister says the toughest part of the decision to become a full-time politician was losing the associations and close friendships developed since 1938 when he began his practice in Edmonton after graduating in medicine from the U of A.

When I called to interview him in his spacious office in the administration building, he had a stack of 40 or 50 letters from patients, congratulating him but at the same time chiding him gently for leaving them without a family doctor.

The slight, soft-spoken minister is a hard worker and should be a valuable addition to the cabinet. He's a man with ideas of his own about medicine and has proven that he can be outspoken when the occasion demands.

He has strong ideas about the practice of medicine. He regards it as a high calling and deplores the tendency to regard it as just another way to make a living. The trend toward specialization frightens him, and he can't say enough about the valuable contributions of the old-fashioned general practitioner.

He has demonstrated in the Legislature that his views on liquor are quite broad and in sharp contrast to the public health minister's. He is not a teetotaler, and believes education is needed to teach the public how to use liquor without abusing it.

Even before he joined the Social Credit party he admired the province's health program, and he isn't likely to introduce major changes. He believes in the idea of free treatment and assistance for long-term, extraordinary illnesses which cause financial catastrophe for the average family.

These are the type of illnesses which require big hospitals, elaborate facilities and trained staff, which only a government can provide. Polio, tuberculosis and cancer are examples, and free treatment has been available for years.

Dr. Ross says he has one major problem to tackle, and that is mental health. He believes there should be more research, and emphasis on preventive measures by early diagnosis. It may be significant that 22 years ago when Dr. Cross was sworn into office he regarded mental health as one of the biggest problems.

Since joining the party, Dr. Ross has read up on Social Credit theories and is convinced they are sound. In addition, he believes Social Credit as a movement is closer to the people. He has an answer to criticism about mixing religion and politics. He simply asks the critic if he would support a party whose members profess to believe in the importance of religion.

"As a doctor I know the importance of the spiritual side of life," he says. "I think religion, in a very broad sense, must have a place in public affairs."

Dr. Ross, the father of seven children, is a veteran of active service with the navy, a founder of the Alcoholics Anonymous of Alberta and, in his spare time, an enthusiastic outdoorsman who enjoys hunting, fishing and horseback riding.

The Atlantic salmon returns from the sea nearly always to the river of its birth.

The aim of forest management is to harvest trees and maintain the yield on a perpetual basis.

Decline of Sawfly

During the past 15 years a marked decline in wheat stem sawfly infestations has occurred in the prairies of western Canada. In 1942, millions of bushels of grain were lost by the ravages of this insect. By 1956, severe infestations had practically disappeared with only small local outbreaks appearing in western Sask. and southern Alberta. Dr. C. W. Farstad, entomologist-in-charge of the crop insect unit at the Lethbridge Science Service Laboratories, Canada dept. of agriculture, says the development of resistant wheat varieties and weather conditions favoring the increase of parasitism are undoubtedly the main contributing factors responsible for this tremendous change.

Rural Representatives Enjoy Leadership Course

The Banff School of Fine Arts is the scene of a Leadership Techniques Course, with thirty-six representatives from the farming districts of Alberta. This course is designed to assist young men and women to accept responsibility, and become active in community work.

This course is under the capable leadership of Mr. S. O. Hillier, and Col. E. W. Cormack and they have gone to great lengths to secure competent speakers to cover every aspect of rural life, from citizenship to farmsteads. Each lecturer is a specialist in his field.

This is sponsored by the Alberta Wheat Pool, United Grain Growers, Farmers Union of Alberta and U.F.A. Central Co-op.

Concerning the Price of Wheat
Very interesting sometimes are items which appear in the columns of our daily papers from the files of say 30, 40 or 50 years ago. One such item appearing in a western paper recently brought into focus the price paid for a bushel of wheat in 1907 compared with that received by the farmer today. The article in question concluded: "Prices continue high, 70c being paid for No. 1 Northern, the standard grade." Actually the records show that the average price of No. 1 Northern for the whole crop year 1906-07 basis Port William/Port Arthur was 79.5c per bushel and that for the succeeding crop year, $1.047 per bushel.

By present day standards, perhaps these prices appear low, being less than one-half the total price received in 1956 for No. 1 Northern, basis the Lakehead, in the one case, and roughly two-thirds the price in the other. Yet, the index of farmers' costs, including the cost of living, is today roughly 3 1/2 times what it was in 1907. Thus the purchasing value of a bushel of wheat in those days was very much higher.

It may be said that the farmer of that day was much more self-sufficient than he is now and that his needs were fewer. That is undoubtedly true but it does not alter the fact that because of the present inflationary nature of things and the decline in the value of our dollar, the proceeds from the sale of a bushel of wheat do not go nearly as far at the present time, as they did in 1907.

Out of 6,000 eggs deposited by an Atlantic salmon in a freshwater stream, fewer than ten adult fish are likely to return from the sea.

Gas Kings Join Seven Team Hockey League

(From The Viking News)

At a meeting held in Daysland over the week-end, the Viking Gas Kings were admitted to the Battle River Hockey League.

The League this year will consist of the Wetaskiwin Colonels, Camrose Maroons, Daysland North Stars, Killam Indians, Hardisty Stampede, Forestburg-Alliance Kilowatts and the Viking Gas Kings.

The League decided on no imports, and players on any team are restricted to residing within twenty miles from the town they represent. It looks like a real amateur league and the results will be watched with interest to see how it fares.

The newly elected president is Mr. V. J. Harney of Daysland.

The Wainwright Commandos request to enter the league was refused.

people compete in the oil business

Did you know there are more than 10,000 people engaged in the search for oil in Canada? We know it, because we run into plenty of them each time we try to lease promising oil lands.

Did you know there are hundreds of skilled chemists and engineers in Canada's 48 refineries? We know it, because our own technical people have to work hard to stay ahead of the others in producing better products at lower cost.

Did you know Canada's oil companies employ thousands of salesmen to market their products? We know it, because every day our own sales people are competing with salesmen from other companies.

Canada's hundreds of oil companies wage vigorous competition. The result is increased efficiency, and benefits to the consumer.

NOVEMBER 11-16 IS F. U. A. WEEK

The co-operation of Alberta farmers will determine the success of this very important Farmers' Union membership drive. The issue is squarely up to the farmers to take this opportunity to build a strong Farmers' Union.

F.U.A. Co-op. organized by farmers to serve farmers in the farm supply field, is keenly interested in the development of a strong Farmers' organization. To get a fair deal for agriculture it is essential to have a farm organization with a membership representing the majority of the Farmers of Alberta.

F.U.A. Co-op strongly urges all farmers and particularly its members to take an active part in F.U.A. Week. Join the Farmers' Union of Alberta. Get your neighbors to join.

AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION SERVICE

The Department of Agriculture of the Government of Alberta maintains a Province-wide Extension Service which is constantly concerned in bringing information to farm families and assisting them to apply it.

District Agricultural and District Home Economist, who comprise the field staff, are strategically located at 45 centers throughout the Province. These highly qualified workers provide direct, friendly assistance to farm people in planning their operations so that they may achieve the maximum in profit and satisfaction from their efforts. This is not done by arbitrarily telling them what they should do, but rather by bringing to them basic and scientific information and encouraging them to apply it in reaching their best decision.

Some farm families need only to be told of the latest research developments, while in others there is a need to consider a more or less complete revision of their operations.

- The principal methods used are:
1. Supervision by field staff of the organization and operation of 4-H Clubs.
  2. Provision of information by field staff with respect to specific problems, including better sires and seed.
  3. Provision of general information through the medium of short courses, radio, press, etc.
  4. Provision of specialists to assist farm families with more complicated problems.
  5. Encouragement to farm families to solve their own problems by group discussion, with Extension workers present to provide information.

The Alberta Department has the highest ratio in Canada of Home Economics to number of occupied farms and was the first to have a specialist in home designing. The average number of occupied farms per District Agriculturalist is about 1900, and per District Home Economist about 3500.

PROVINCIAL SCHOOLS OF AGRICULTURE AND HOME ECONOMICS

The Schools of agriculture and Home Economics provide practical training to young men and women who intend to make careers in modern farming and homemaking. Each school consists of modern dormitories, class rooms, laboratories, shops and barns. A farm is operated in conjunction with each school to provide practical instruction.

Schools are located at Olds, Vermilion and Fairview. The term is from late October to early April. The course for boys is one or two terms, depending on qualifications. In 1956, the course for girls became a one-year course.

Boys taking the two-year course in agriculture must have passed their 17th birthday by December 31st of the year in which they apply. For all other courses the minimum age (at registration) is 16 years, in which they apply. Must have grade 9 standing for entrance; however, consideration is given to older students who may have lower grades.

There are no tuition fees for residents of Alberta. Approximate yearly cost for board and room, text books, and classroom materials is about $275.00.

AGRICULTURAL COURSES

The object of the course is to equip young men with practical knowledge necessary for farm operations. It includes:

- Plant husbandry—animal husbandry.
- Farm Mechanics (including carpentry, blacksmithing and welding).
- Farm Management.
- Poultry—dairying—horticulture.

The course in science shows the application of science in farming practices. English and public speaking are studied.

HOME ECONOMICS COURSES

While the course in Home Economics allows considerable time for the study of foods, clothing and home management, other subjects include typing, bookkeeping, English, horticulture, public speaking, poultry and home nursing.

Special laboratories are maintained for the study of Home Economics. The Alberta Government courses in Agriculture and Home Economics not only provide valuable training in these specific subjects but, as well, furnish students with experiences in living which will serve them well throughout their lives.
